

FREYERMARTIN PARTNERS WITH NONPROFIT SECOND CHANCE EMPLOYMENT SERVICES TO SUPPORT AT-RISK WOMEN

Survivors of Domestic Violence Will Learn Financial Management Skills to Aid Their Independence.

WASHINGTON, DC, December 8, 2008 - FreyerMartin officially partnered with Second Chance Employment Services this week. Dr. Ludy Green, President and Founder of SCES, met with Carla Morelli, Founder and President of FreyerMartin to formalize this powerful new relationship that will make a difference in the lives of at-risk women across the country.

FreyerMartin, a leader in the daily money management industry with clients around the world, will donate workshops that teach the basics of budgeting, managing household bills, and understanding credit as well as private counseling to women who have emerged from abusive relationships and may be financially independent for the first time in their lives.

“The passion and dedication of everyone associated with Second Chance Employment Services is inspiring,” says Morelli, “We were very moved by Ludy and her staff and are proud to be able to support their work.”

“We’re grateful to have such a generous partner,” Green says of FreyerMartin, “The information imparted through their program is critical knowledge that our clients need in order to make a successful transition to life on their own. Having a solid understanding of how to manage the day-to-day aspects of household finance will boost their confidence and make them more effective.”

SCES relies heavily on partnership support to reach future goals and continue their successes. As the organization and the need for such services grows, these partnerships become increasingly important. FreyerMartin workshops will begin in early 2009.
